Dear Member,

Since our last newsletter appeared, several matters with which the Black Sash has been deeply concerned, have been brought to public notice:

- a) Our distress at the Bonnievale Removals of Africans qualified to remain in the area has resulted in an excellent article by Frances Bowers which appeared in the "Cape Times" illustrated by telling photographs.
- b) The long fast on Signal Hill of the Rev. B. Wrankmore and the service there attended by about 6,000 people have drawn attention once more to the death of the late Iman Haron and to other detentions without trial. It is well that these things should be remembered and that consciences should be stirred so that we are not lulled into acceptance of evil. The good wishes of the Sash were extended to Mr. Wrankmore and a cheque for R10 (ten rands) was sent to help defray the expenses of advertising the meeting.

MARKET RESEARCH

It was decided to instruct the Market Research Association to undertake the proposed survey of certain African townships, provided the necessary authority is obtained.

"CHEQUE" FROM H.Q.

The Cape Western Region has ordered 1,000 copies of this "Cheque" for R5 on "The Benevolent Bank" of South Africa for distribution to members and others, hoping to emphasise that this amount is all an African pensioner has to live on for a month.

ACTION PANEL

The panel has undertaken to investigate the food costs in the townships with a view to a possible press campaign afterwards. They are considering ways in which members of the Sash may be involved in public affairs and with this in view organised visits to the Advice Office and to townships have already been paid and others have been planned for the future.

ATHLONE ADVICE OFFICE

Mrs. Versfeld addressed a Rotary Club on the work of the Advice Office. Her report to the Institute of Race Relations received high praise.

Mrs. Robb will pay a visit to Port Elizabeth where Black Sash members would like to start an Advice Office and need help.

African widows in Cape Peninsula townships have appalling burdens. On top of the threat and often the fact of eviction from houses in which they have built up family homes, they are very commonly offered the choice between sending the children (usually born here) to relatives in the Transkei or Ciskei, while remaining here on their own as breadwinners, or going away with them, perhaps to resettlement townships. If the authorities feel that a particular widow merits particular consideration, providing she herself qualifies as a resident of the area, she may be recommended to the Department of Bantu Affairs for a special concession and allowed to remain in the house. This was achieved for Mrs. R.Q., after much difficulty but Mrs. M.B., aged 30, left with five children, is unlikely to be so fortunate because she did not register her presence in the Peninsula until 1959, although she came from East London aged 4 and was here from 1945. Moreover, she was transferred from the Divisional Council to the Municipal area in 1970, shortly before her husband's death. He qualified in the Municipal area, but she does not qualify in either, and the housing regulations cannot be stretched to accommodate her. She has been told to choose between sending the children to her deceased husband's family, whom she has never met and who live in the Transkei, and going with them to live at Mdantsane.
